This is DINGO owned by CIRCLE C-B TRAINING Stables, Greenville, Texas, Route 1, Box 139. Please take a good look at Dingo he is trained to exercise Quarter Horses. First started on a walker but found he would do a better job out in the big exercise pen as Dingo can exercise 20 cutting horses at one time and he keeps them moving. Dingo doesn't seem to tire or slow down, but will work until some one tells Dingo that is enough and to put the horses in their stalls. Dingo sleeps in the stall with the Quarter Horse he is exercising. Dingo is valued at $2,500.00 for exercising and penning horses. The Dingo was bred by Stodghill's Animal Research Foundation.

The ANIMAL RESEARCH MAGAZINE is the official publication of the Animal Research Foundation which is dedicated to the research, recognition and registration of all purebred livestock, working dogs, and new canine breeds. The magazine itself is primarily to preserve and promote good working qualities of the stockdog. It is published periodically and is distributed to Associate Members and to ARF Certified Breeders. Associate Membership in the ARF is $5.00 per year and this includes a 1 year subscription to the magazine.

For ARF Certified Breeders, however, it is $10.00. But in addition to the magazine, Certified Breeders also receive an ARF Record Book, a pad of 25 pedigrees, 1 year's membership in the Animal Research Foundation, plus their name, address, phone number and breed of their dogs or livestock in the ARF Certified Breeder Listing. This Breeder Listing is proving to be a great success and is a great boost to sales for all our ARF breeders. A Certified Breeder keeps complete records of each litter in the ARF Record Book and has each and every animal registered in the customer's name. The ARF Registration Office returns the ARF Registration Papers to the breeder, he makes a copy on the animal sold and sends the Papers to the customer. Any time a customer loses a Registration Paper, he can write the breeder and get the ARF number, then send the number to the ARF and get duplicate Registration Papers for $1.00.

The ARF is working on a book of rules for Heeldog Trials, also for Catahoula Trials - training instructions - training dogs for trials. It will sell at $6.00 and we are now booking orders for future delivery. We need your suggestions - the bare facts for $6.00 or a more complete book for $12.50? We will also include training police attack dogs, guard dogs, Border Collies, Catahoulas and heel dogs

TOM STODGHILL

The Animal Research Foundation is growing so fast it is a full day's work each day and many times I have to work until midnight to get out the day's work which includes filling out registration papers and sending them back by return mail. This is true if my secretary is able to read the pedigrees that are mailed in.

It sure would help a lot if everyone would type the pedigree or write large and if they do print, be sure to make BOXED letters like "T H I S". Many people print so small that it is impossible to read. So please write larger and clearer so we can read your writing or printing.

We have mailed a number of people ARF registration papers in a BIG envelope with a Record Book and they wouldn't find the registration papers so we would have to make duplicate copies. Whenever anyone doesn't get ARF registration papers back by return mail, the pedigree wasn't filled out right and my secretary can't complete it and I have to do it myself. If you want your registration papers out by return mail, please fill them out complete and type the pedigree or write large enough so my secretary can get them correct.

A few days ago Ralph Pulfer from Ohio, was by the Animal Research Foundation with a goose neck trailer and a load of Barbades sheep that Preston Robinson had helped him pen on a ranch near San Saba, Texas. Mr. Pulfer plans to be back to the ARF Trials this October. Lewis Pulfer is having the trials at his place about two weeks earlier this year so he can make the Texas Trials. If Lewis Pulfer comes to the Texas Trials more than likely Lewis Pence will also be here. I hope they do come and team up together to work against Preston Robinson and Harold Hale. More than likely Professor Evans from Arkansas will bring another man to take part and work with Professor Evans representing Arkansas in the Trials.

I talked to Arthur Allen a few days ago and he plans to be here to try to win the pair of giant Texas Long Horns that the ARF is giving to the man who wins the most points at San Saba and at the Trials here in Quinlan. In fact, Arthur Allen plans to come by Morris Wall and get another load of Barbades sheep, and if he can get them, he will bring them by to work at the ARF Trials. Anyway, I am building a sheep-proof fence to hold these wild Barbades sheep. If Mr. Allen will bring a load of these Barbades sheep, I hope to get in the news on the Dallas stations and if we can get in the news, it might be possible to get thousands of people out of Dallas to come to the ARF Sheep Dog Trials.

The ARF has done a lot of cross-breeding but there was one thing we were very careful about and that was to keep the old breeds pure. There is one thing I would like to emphasize and make clear - can't any breed be crossed with the Border Collie and still have a sheep dog, and the ARF has proved that without a doubt.

The Quarter Dingo, Quarter Kelpie and 50% Border Collie make a good cowdog and you need Dingo in both sire and dam to get what I want in cowdogs, but they are absolutely too rough for sheep dogs.

Over a long period of years we find the black-tan English Shepherd pleases many people for cowdogs and many are even going to the large cities. Over 90% of the ARF registered English Shepherds are black-tan.

The ARF went to a lot of trouble and expense to get the facts on the Australian Shepherd history. They are a combination of black and white natural bob Smithfield and the blue merle Collie. The Smithfield originally came from England and was carried to Australia. It was in Australia where the Smithfield and the blue merle Collie were blended together and the natural bob blue merle Australian Shepherd is a breed that will breed very true to color and type. But to protect the Australian Shepherd, the ARF does not register black-tan English Shepherds as Australian Shepherds. The ARF does not believe in docking blue merle Collies' tails trying to make them fit into the Australian Shepherd class. The ARF is registering long tailed blue merle as Blue Merle Shepherd and their tails will be their glory. The ARF is also re-establishing the natural bob black and white Smithfield dogs to protect the Australian Shepherd, as many Border Collies are having their tails docked and put in the Australian Shepherd class.

As far back as I can remember, there has been a natural bob red shepherd and a lot of them were a red brindle or a mottled color and always known as the English Shepherd in Texas. But in Tennessee, they were known as Old Time Shepherd. Now these same dogs are being classified as red merle Australian Shepherds and the ARF is willing to put these dogs in the Australian Shepherd class as they are good working dogs with a natural bob tail.

But there is also a Brittany Spaniel that is a red merle and a natural bob tail but their head is different and they don't look like a red merle Australian Shepherd. Now when these Brittany Spaniels are being shown as Australian Shepherds and judged by AKC judges who don't know anything about Australian Shepherds, it isn't fair to the judge or to the Australian Shepherd breed either, nor to the Brittany Spaniel for that matter. The Brittany Spaniel is a good looking dog and is one of the better breeds of bird dogs, but it sure doesn't belong in the Australian Shepherd class just because they are a natural bob and a red merle. If we are going to make show dogs out of the Australian Shepherd, the ARF is going to do all it can to have WORKING Australian Shepherds!

Ivan Thompson put 10,000 calves through the Conditioning Barn at Gruver, Texas. These calves were vaccinated, castrated and dehorned and the feed lots paid $5.00 for each calf that went through this Conditioning Barn.

"Old Blue", ARF registered (No. 133 Vol. 1) Australian Shepherd, took the place of two or three men and a lot of times all the help Ivan Thompson had was "Old Blue". Ivan Thompson and "Old Blue's" part of the deal was $25,000.00. Now that is what I call a WORKING Australian Shepherd! If we are going to have SHOW Australian Shepherds, why not have WORKING Australian Shepherd show dogs like "Old Blue"!

"Dogs Have Stars, Too"

By MARGUERITE HAWKINSON

4414 Cogswell Road
El Monte, California 91732

Have you wondered what makes your dog tick? Well who among us hasn't at one time or another? They do the most outlandishly wild things at one time, and on another occasion, surprise you with the wisdom with which they handle an unexpected situation. And you say "My stars above, what makes that dog behave so?" Well, I'll tell you - you may have a point there. I mean, really ask the stars?

The angles at which the vibrational waves from one star (planet) strikes those of another, reveal the combinations of energy surrounding the individual at birth. If you analyze these, you can judge the direction the individual may take due to these various pressures. For instance, if the angle at which they meet is a 90 degree angle, we call it "square" and the effect is to cause the things concerned to be at cross-purposes. It's like being kicked in the shins; you quickly dodge and perhaps kick back.

180 degree angle is called an "opposition" because the two planets are opposite each other. It is like someone or something meeting you head-on, insisting you consider their point of view. There has to be give and take.

A "trine" or 120 degree angle, indicates things flowing smoothly from one point to the other with no effort on the part of the individual.

A helpful angle is the 60 degree angle called a "sextile". Things flow from one point to the other, merging without conflict. If you wish to work with it, you can use the flow to advantage.

These are the major angles to consider in an astrological chart. These various angles (aspects) are all allowed some leeway, depending on the strength of the planets involved.

Our example chart on the opposite page, is that of our English Shepherd registered as "Duchess 2nd". Her kennel name is "Delilah" which we will use here. This is a solar chart as we do not know her time of birth. The solar chart shows potentials and capabilities.

The sun (☉) trine Mars (♂) gives abundant physical vitality and little hesitancy in using it. This causes "Delilah" to always be on the move, being very direct and clear about aims and purposes. Makes her forceful, hard hitting, aggressive, with speed and great endurance. She should be a good leader when it comes to action.

Sun trine Saturn (♄) indicates she comes from good stock, and was born into a favorable environment except for some kind of hardship very early in life (shown by moon opposite Saturn) causing her to assume some kind of responsibility - perhaps fending for herself in some way, as a competition in feeding. This aspect is also an indication of a good sound body and mind.

Moon opposite Saturn shows a serious mind, capable of concentrated effort, and also periods when she might be moody and depressed - very sensitive to what is going on around her. While young she may show anger and displays of temperament, but she should outgrow this. This also indicates a very keen analytical mentality.

Sun conjunct (very close to) Uranus shows a strong desire for independence, and points to a nervous, high strung and worrisome type. This also adds to a quick sharp mind. The symbol for Uranus is (♅).

Venus (♀) trine Saturn will help to calm down the nervousness, bestows self-confidence and sound good sense. Saturn opposite Neptune (♆) adds to the faith and confidence in self.

Moon conjunct Neptune gives much imagination which could run away with her, resulting in over-emotional response to things she doesn't see clearly.

Sun conjunct Venus usually gives beauty and intensifies emotional matters.

Saturn in opposition to Jupiter - Saturn being restrictive and Jupiter being expansion, tends to counteract the over-active imagination and gives her a little humility.

Moon conjunct Jupiter tells us she has good character, is very dependable and can be counted on to do the right thing. She would never be mean or petty, never vindictive.

Mercury (☿) in the sign of Virgo (♍) boosts the analytical mentality.

Pluto (♇) there in 29 degrees of Virgo indicates very critical times as she learns to cooperate with others.

You know, it's kind of nice when "Delilah" does some wacky thing, to be able to say "Well, that's her moon opposite Saturn; she'll outgrow that!" And you can believe it when we say that she sure is one swell gal. And a good watchdog too!

The name of "Delilah's" mate is "Samson" and you should meet him sometime--but that's another story!

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

As you can see, Mrs. Hawkinson does not judge the dogs by the moon alone. The entire planetary picture at the time of birth must be taken into consideration. When the time of birth is known, she can erect a Natal or Radix chart showing the relationship of any person or animal born at that time, to their environment. It shows their reactions to the things around them, and gives a good picture of their personality and the way they impress others.

A Radix chart is an astronomical chart of the positions of all the known planets in relation to a particular place on the earth at a particular time. The time is necessary to compute such a chart. To learn to do this, nine years ago Mrs. Hawkinson began to study with a friend who had about 25 years experience in this field. She studied Astronomy under Mr. Bose at Santa Monica City College, and a year and a half ago began attending classes at an Astrology school in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Hawkinson tells us that she is enjoying learning to understand people better and now finds that these same principles can also help to explain why animals do some of the unusual things they do.

"Delilah" in one of her emotional outbursts - "Sam" patiently saying "Now you're just getting all upset over nothing."

Here it looks like "Sam" is trying to explain what happened to author. Mrs. Hawkinson thought you would appreciate the humor of the situation.

Over the years I find it is easy to get people to do what I do but it is almost impossible to get anyone to do anything I tell them to do unless I do it myself. It is very important for everyone to set a good example for others to go by because you never know who is watching you and doing what you are doing just because they believe in you. So you see, it is very important what we say and what we do.

The reason I believe so many planes are being hijacked is because the news gives the hijackers so much free publicity. Anything will increase that gets as much publicity as they get and the news dramatizes the money they try to get. Someone listens to this as it is being dramatized and gets the idea that he knows the mistakes the others made and thinks he won't make those same mistakes and can rob a plane. This goes on and on and more and more planes are being hijacked.

The question is "How can we stop these reporters from reporting the news when we know it will increase as long as they give the hijackers publicity?" I know everyone wants to know what happens but why dramatize the news when everyone knows hijacking will probably increase if it isn't kept out of the news. It would sure help a lot if it was only reported one time (I mean once only) on any radio or TV station and never published on front pages of newspapers. Repeating it over and over again so many times is what helps to increase crime so much.

The Poverty Program could be helped a lot too if we had enough ARF members who would volunteer to work free a few hours a week. What is needed most is for all these inspectors who call on the people who get poverty checks to be volunteer workers and have three volunteer inspectors instead of one paid inspector to call on these people, because in a lot of cases, these inspectors don't want to get those people jobs. If those people did get jobs, the inspectors wouldn't have any jobs.

I know this to be a fact at least in one case for I have a grocery store and meat market and there is one woman who has three children living with their grandmother who comes into the store. This woman lived with a man she wasn't married to about 100 miles back of where her children were and once a month she would go back where her children were and sign up to get the poverty check. I asked her why she didn't marry this man as he worked good and she said she didn't want to lose her poverty check. Then I asked her if she wasn't afraid she would lose it by not staying with her children and she said "Me and the inspector are in business together. She don't want to lose her check and I don't want to lose mine." The inspector didn't care what she did so long as she was there to sign up.

In most cases the mentally retarded and invalids don't get enough and there are millions on the poverty list who wouldn't be there if we had enough ARF volunteer workers to help inspect the people who are drawing these checks. We also need a system that would strengthen the home instead of destroying it. In reality, what we need is enough ARF members who are as interested in people and the home as they are in animals. The animals don't have a chance without good intelligent people to care for them. In most instances where people who draw poverty checks are concerned, neither money nor schools are enough. What we need most are thousands of ARF members who are interested in the future of America to visit these people, go into their homes and find out what their problems are. Let them know that someone cares.

My mother and all her family were the greatest humanitarians I ever knew. I can remember my mother visiting all the people in the community that others thought they were too good to associate with. My mother had the friendship of all these people and in most instances, she would work wonders.

She would invite them to church. If their excuse was that they didn't have clothes to wear to church, my mother was a good seamstress and she would have the woman come over to our house and my mother would buy new clothes and make them to fit all the children in the family. And if the woman didn't know how to sew, my mother would teach her how to make children's clothes. And if there were any girls in the family who were old enough to sew, my mother would teach both the mother and the girl.

My mother's plan was to swap work with these people. She would help them and they would do all kinds of work for my mother, and she would carry these people she had taught to sew and clean house with her to visit other people who needed help. Not only would my mother get these people to go to church, she was always having concerts at the school and my mother would find plays that would fit all the children in these families who had never gone to church before. In a lot of instances, many had never gone to school either. But my mother knew how to make friends and she could get them to go to church and send their children to school.

I remember one boy she couldn't get to take part because he seemed to be afraid of everyone. She had a play that called for a clown and found by putting a false face and a clown suit on this backward boy, he wasn't afraid and would then do or say anything my mother told him to, and he was the star of the school play!

My Aunt Belle Dromgoole (my mother's sister) was a graduate from Baylor University at Waco, Texas. My grandmother lived in Waco and Aunt Belle wanted a school where she could live at home and teach. There was a little country school out on the edge of Waco and Aunt Belle applied for a job. The trustees told her she was welcome if she thought she could handle the school, but there was a 16 year old boy who ran the teacher off the year before and they were trying to get a man to teach the school who was big enough to handle that boy. Aunt Belle told the trustees that she had already heard about what happened the year before and was anxious to see what she could do. She thought she could handle the "outlaw" boy everyone was afraid of.

Aunt Belle got to school early the first day. She drove "Old Charlie" to the buggy and when she arrived at school, the "outlaw" boy was there. But she introduced herself and got that boy to help her build a fire. In those days they had school for only six months because the children had to help pick cotton before they started to school, and it was cold when school began. Aunt Belle asked John what grade he was in and he said he was in 4th grade, and had been in the 4th grade for three years!

Aunt Belle put the smallest boy in the front seat and big bad John right behind this little boy who was extra small for his age. But time proved he was one of the best boys in school.

Every time Aunt Belle would turn her back on big bad John, he would make a face and have all the other children in that one room country school laughing. She would let on like she thought it was the little boy and when someone would tell her it was John, she would say that he wouldn't do a thing like that! For the rest of the day everything passed off quiet but big bad John wouldn't study and he would throw paper wads at the kids and keep up a confusion every time Aunt Belle turned her back. She knew what was going on but she was determined to outsmart him, so she kept an eye on big bad John. As she didn't say anything though he got worse.

Aunt Belle was writing on the blackboard teaching Arithmetic class and big bad John threw a piece of chalk and hit the blackboard. Then Aunt Belle turned around and told the little boy who was sitting in front of John that she was going to tan his hide for chunking chalk at her, and she told big bad John to cut her a good switch because she was going to whip the little boy. If that didn't stop him, she was going to send him home because he was too little to come to school.

So big bad John cut the switch and it was more like a buggy whip to whip a horse than it was to tan the hide of a little mischievous boy.

Aunt Belle asked John why he cut such a big switch and big bad John said "Miss Dromgoole, you need a BIG switch because it is me who needs the whipping and it had been me all the time. The little boy hadn't done anything at all!" He wanted her to whip him as he was the one who really needed it. One thing for sure, he would never give her any more trouble and he didn't want anyone to take a whipping for him.

Since he was man enough to tell her the truth, Aunt Belle told big bad John that he didn't need a whipping, but John insisted she whip him. She told him she would keep the switch and if she ever needed it she would sure use it, but she never had any more trouble out of big bad John and a few days later, Aunt Belle promoted him to the 5th grade. He soon passed everyone in the class and was the leading student in school until he finished.

Every Christmas big John was Santa Claus at the school Christmas tree, and when a baseball knocked out the window light, Aunt Belle brought a new glass and it was big John who put in the new window pane. It was big John who was the volunteer janitor of the school too.

After he grew up, married and had a family of his own, he was the Trustee of the same little school!

Aunt Belle got married and moved to Oroville, California, in 1922, but as long as she lived whenever she visited Texas, she always went by to see big John as he was a very successful farmer and businessman and raised six children of his own. On one of these visits back to Waco, he told Aunt Belle that he was sending all his children to Baylor University at Waco because he wanted his children to be like Miss Dromgoole. John also told Aunt Belle he had often wondered what would have happened to him if it hadn't have been for going to school to her, and he was encouraging his children to become teachers because he wanted them to be like Miss Dromgoole who had made a man out of him!

Miscellaneous Breeds

4 month old "Tippy" and 9 month old "Leggs". McNabs owned by Buzz Orton of Elk Mountain, Wyoming.

" THE McNAB STRAIN "

The Animal Research Foundation introduces the McNab Shepherd, a particular Border Collie strain known by stockmen throughout the West as simply the "McNab".

It seems that the dog which came to be known as the McNab Shepherd is actually a strain within a strain. For there are both long haired and short haired Border Collies. The first of these are naturally much better adapted to work in colder climates. The short haired, however, was ideal for the dry, steep ranges of Mendocino County, California.

When Alexander McNab immigrated to America from Glasgow, Scotland, in 1868, he settled in that particular area, and established the McNab Ranch. He later imported two short haired Border Collies from central Scotland and these two became the foundation dogs for the McNab strain.

John McNab, Alexander's son, is actually the man who is responsible for originating and developing this particular Border Collie strain.

Buzz Orton of Elk Mountain, Wyoming, sent us the above photo of his two McNab females. As you can see, they are a black short haired dog with white markings and range from 40 to 75 pounds. McNabs are versatile workers on cattle or sheep, can adjust to any climate, and will work in the brush, the open or only the chute all equally well. Like other Borders, they are also protective and gentle with children.

" A NEW BREED AND MORE TO COME "

Muriel Landers-Cooke of Moscar Kennels, Sheffield, England, is one of the newest friends of the ARF. She was kind enough to submit a photograph of the Ormskirk Heeler (pictured below), and will be supplying breed standards for several dogs that are quite unfamiliar to us here in America.

Muriel tells us that there are a number of breeds in Great Britain that do breed true, but are not recognized by the Kennel Club, so we will be able to familiarize ourselves with some of these.

As you can see, the Ormskirk Heeler in the photograph, is rather like a Corgi in physical characteristics. This breed is always black and tan, however, and we understand that the placement of the ears of the dog in the picture is incorrect. The ears should be erect instead of breaking over.

In an effort not to be misleading, our above title "A New Breed and More to Come" need not refer to the Ormskirk Heeler as a brand new breed but moreso as a breed "new" to Americans.

Next issue will carry a standard of the Anatolian Karabash Sheepdog which we know here in this country as the Turkish Shepherd. I am sure all of us who are interested in different breeds and varieties will be looking forward to these standards and descriptions in our future issues.

We would like to thank Muriel Landers-Cooke for supplying this material and we also hope to see her at the ARF Trials when she visits this country in October.

" THE JUMBO CHIHUAHUA AND THE TOY TERRIER "

By

Rena L. Gray
Rt. 1 - Box 249AA
Belton, Texas 76513

I have a little Toy Terrier, one of the best born studs I have ever known, but I have never sent off to get his papers because at the time he was born, I wasn't really that concerned. But I get a lot of stud service from him with close neighbors and many of them don't care whether or not he is registered. But now he has built quite a name for himself and folks are bringing their little Terriers from other towns besides Temple and the Belton area. So since I have started with the Animal Research Foundation, I have decided to register him as an ARF dog.

I have two little females (both are registered in the United Kennel Club) and both have had puppies which were registered with the ARF.

I want to thank Mr. Stodghill for his prompt consideration regarding registration. It is so much nicer to have a business with a warm and friendly person than to wait time and again on a computer service and have your puppies half grown before you finally get an answer. I am not meaning to complain about other kennel service but it is a fact that it takes 8 to 10 weeks with the UKC and about the same with the AKC. I was pleasantly surprised when I sent in for the Cunningham dogs and got the registration back in 4 days!

I like the idea of having something nice like that in Texas anyway, but if I lived in any other State, I still had rather deal with the ARF.

I must send for some more magazines too. I have distributed mine among stock owners and dog owners around here until I've let go of some that I want to study some more. So at a later date I'll send for more.

I am also looking for "Meme", my guard dog Chihuahua, to bring puppies. I am anxious to get this Jumbo Chihuahua project moving!

"TRAINING BORDER COLLIES IN OBEDIENCE"

I saw your ad for subscriptions to the official Border Collie Magazine in the November Dog World. I have just recently acquired a Border Collie and have fallen in love with the breed.

Could you send me a sample issue of the magazine as I am considering giving a subscription to some friends and I may also subscribe to the magazine myself.

We are interested in training our dogs in obedience, not in herding sheep, although, of course, we are interested in knowing as much as we can about this breed.

Please let me know the price of a sample issue and to whom I should make out a check for it and for the subscriptions if I decide on them. Would also like information on the old editions.

Sincerely,

"PROSPECTIVE ARF BREEDERS"

The subscription to the ARF Magazine which I ordered for my parents - Mr. and Mrs. M. Andree - has proven to be a most delightful gift, not only to them, but to my husband and myself as well. We want to thank you for the extra copies which you sent to us.

I would like to ask you one more favor. My husband and I are now thinking of purchasing a female Australian Shepherd and are hoping to become Certified ARF Breeders. Would you consider sending us a list of breeders of this strain so that we could contact those nearest to us? Thank you!

Mrs. Leslie L. Vos

EDITOR'S NOTE: You can see how important it is for people with good stock to offer to become Certified Breeders and have their name and address published in the ARF Certified Breeder Listing. This listing is proving to be a great success as it makes it possible for everyone to know everyone else. When many people who are sent the ARF Certified Breeder Listing are on vacation, they often visit the ARF breeders who are published in the List. The breeders visit each other and even visit the ARF breeders who live in Canada! And when you have good stock to sell, your dogs or livestock are made available through publication in the Listing. People like Mr. and Mrs. Leslie L. Vos will read your name and another satisfied customer may be on the way. So advertising in the ARF Breeder Listing is well worth looking into if you want others to become acquainted with what you have to offer.

"WORKING CATAHOULAS"

Words can't express the enjoyment I've received from the twenty back issues of your magazine. I was not aware that a Foundation such as yours existed until I bought a Catahoula-Bulldog pup from Mr. E. H. Daniels at Pamhusa, Oklahoma.

I first became interested in the Catahoula some twenty-five years ago in South Texas but it took several years to obtain the kind and type I desired. It would have been much easier if I had known of your Foundation.

My glass eyed, funny colored dogs have created a lot of interest in this area. In fact, I am waiting for daylight now to load my dogs and horses to go pen some 90 head of cross-bred Brahma cows with calves that "got away" yesterday. I may not get them all the first drive, but I'll get them to be sure!

At present, I only have three old dogs and two pups. I prefer to work them three at a time and, of course, you need young dogs coming on.

I have never sold a pup and don't intend to. I give them to friends that I know will use them and take proper care of them.

My two old dogs came out of the swamp below Hauma, Louisiana; my bitch from Bryan, Texas, out of stock that is registered with your Foundation. I don't have papers on any of them but if possible, I hope to visit your Foundation soon and get them inspected. They have never worked hogs, only cattle and horses, but I sincerely hope that you are able to organize trials for Catahoula Leopard Dogs; I'll try to be there.

I have been raising Herefords, Quarter Horses and a few dogs, and am looking forward to meeting you in person so we can talk dogs and horses.

"MULTIPLE INTERESTS IN THE ARF"

I am very interested in cattle dogs and the Animal Research Magazine is the only contact that I have found with stock dog people; an excellent contact it is!

I would like very much to receive a copy of the official Border Collie - English Shepherd All-Breed Stockdog Magazine and a list of Certified Breeders of Border Collies and English Shepherds.

I would also appreciate any information you may have on training, films, and the American Collie. Thank you very much for any assistance you may be able to give me.

"GOOD RESPONSE FROM ARF BREEDER LISTING"

I am writing in regard to our Catahoula "Kat" No. 2027 Vol. 20. She was killed recently and I am sending her papers along for you to stamp. She had a litter of 14 pups about four weeks before she was killed and sorry to say, we had to get rid of most of them sooner than expected. We did manage to hang onto the ones with color though. I would like to have her papers sent back should we decide to register her pups too.

I want to congratulate you on the research that you have done for these different breeds of animals for which you register. I must say that we never expected to hear from anyone in response to your ARF Breeder Listing, but was very pleased to receive a letter from a man in Maryland in regard to our name being printed in your ARF Breeder Listing. Hope to come down your way this summer on vacation.

"SUBSCRIBED TO ONE OF OUR FIRST MAGAZINES"

Enclosed is a pedigree slip on a pup that I want registered.

I would like to subscribe to your Animal Research Magazine for one year again. I took it eight or ten years ago and have saved all the magazines and put them in a loose leaf note book.

If you have any back issues of your magazine, I would like to have them. If you do, please tell me what you want for them and how many you have.

I am very interested in all your research work.

Enclosed is a $6.00 money order for registering the pup and for the subscription.

"STUDENT DOING RESEARCH ON BORDER COLLIE"

I am a high school senior and I am currently working on a term report for my Agriculture Science Class concerning the training of Border Collies as sheep and cattle herders.

I would appreciate it very much if you could send me information on their training, as I have looked in our city library and some other libraries and have found no specific information on the Border Collie as a herder or otherwise.

Thank you for taking the time to read this letter.

"INTERESTED IN REGISTRATION"

Please send me a pad of 25 Certified Pedigrees. When will my dues be due? Please let me know and also how much it will be as I like to belong to the Animal Research Foundation.

I have bred one of my females to "Julius Caesar", Mr. Richard J. Bertrand's male that appeared in the Winter Issue '70-'71 of your magazine. He is beautiful!

Can he be registered so I can have my pups registered with the ARF? My female is "Louisiana Lou Marie" - Reg. No. 2198 Vol. 21.

What will Mr. Bertrand need in order to register "Julius Caesar"? Please let me know.

I have two females to be registered later on and how would I go about having them in the ARF? They are nice ones!

Thanking you, I remain

ALL ABOUT --- English Shepherds

" TRAINING HINTS WHEN YOU HAVE ENGLISH SHEPHERDS AND BORDER COLLIES "

By
Tom D. Stodghill

The English Shepherd and the Border Collie are two breeds you absolutely do not want to train together. Since the Border Collie drives everything to you and the English Shepherd drives everything away from you, they need to be trained separately. It takes special training to get a Border Collie to drive from you and it is best to get them completely trained on driving to you before you start them on driving away from you.

Anyone can train a black-tan English Shepherd as they are natural born cowdogs and if you will go with your English Shepherd a few times and the dog heels the cows, the cows will go to the pen when they see the dog coming. In reality, the English Shepherd trains the cows.

If you have English Shepherds and Border Collies both, train your cows with your English Shepherd Heelers and they will respect a dog. Then as your cows are trained with the English Shepherd, the cows will go to the pen when they see your Border Collie.

For driving cattle or penning the entire herd, the English Shepherd is the dog to use. But for cutting out one cow or for penning a cow and baby calves, the Border Collie will cut out anything you want, if you know how to train the Border Collie. You have to know more to train a Border Collie than you have to know to train the black-tan English Shepherd. But do not confuse the black-tan English Shepherd with those so-called English Shepherds.

A few weeks ago I saw a picture of a dog that was supposed to be an English Shepherd which I am very positive didn't have any English Shepherd blood at all. It was a mixture of Border Collie and something else. It looked like a Border Collie and a traveling salesman!

Over 25 years ago, I tried to help a number of people to develop a breed of dogs we call "American Shepherds" which was a combination of Border Collies and English Shepherds. I was very careful to keep my English Shepherd and Border Collies pure and registered these cross-breeds as "American Shepherds" to be sure they wouldn't be blended in with the Border Collie or English Shepherd. But I was very much disappointed with the American Shepherd because they didn't have any true style of work. Yet they would work and were unusually good alert watchdogs.

STODGHILL'S ANIMAL RESEARCH MAGAZINE

I never was completely satisfied with the American Shepherd until I blended Australian Shepherd, Kelpie and Dingo into the American Shepherd. The Dingo blood is so strong that it made a breed out of the American Shepherd but the ARF is very careful to put the percentage of Dingo blood after the name of the breed such as (American Shepherd 3/8 Dingo). We find the second generation is best when we have Dingo in both sire and dam. One thing for sure, if they have Dingo blood it will show. If you can't see it as a pup, you can as a grown dog. In reality, it shows up very young because the Dingo goes to work very young.

We were breeding the very best imported Border Collie females to English Shepherds like the famous "Old Bozo", the original old Hub English Shepherd which is now showing up in over 90% of all ARF registered English Shepherds. The best of all these breeds blended together give the Dingo a chance to show the value of a controlling gene from one great dog.

There is a great demand for black-tan English Shepherds and we are encouraging more people to start breeding more black-tan English Shepherds to try to supply the demand. A little white always shows up on a few pups and sometimes even a white ring neck pup, but if they are Clock-Wise bred "Bozo line" of English Shepherd, they will heel cows and also look very much alike. One thing for sure, they'll all have the same style of work!

" REGISTERING PUPS IN THE ARF WHEN SIRE AND DAM ARE REGISTERED ELSEWHERE "

If a female that is registered in the American International Border Collie Registry (AIBC) or in the North American Sheep Dog Society (NA) has pups and you want these pups registered in the ARF, all you have to do to register them is to fill out the names and the registration numbers on the other registration papers. And on the ARF pedigree where it says Volumn, put AIBC or NA depending which registry the female is registered with.

The ARF registers a lot of pups where the sire is registered with the AIBC and we give the pups ARF numbers.

The North American Registry does not recognize the American International Border Collie Registry, but the AIBC does recognize the NA. In fact, there used to be but one registry.

Even if the sire and dam are both registered with the NA, their pups cannot be registered with them unless both dogs are inspected and are approved working Border Collies and inspected by two members of the North American Sheep Dog Society. This ruling has kept a lot of the very best Border Collies out of imported sires and dams from being registered.

When the Animal Research Foundation Registry was first set up, we never even thought about registering Border Collies. But as the ARF was established to register any breed, the ARF was forced to register Border Collies or to make a lot of enemies, and friends are naturally very important.

Texas was covered up with the very best Border Collies that the registration papers had not been kept up to date and the ARF registered these Border Collies that would pass inspection. Time has proved that the Animal Research Foundation has done more to help the Border Collie breed and in the last seven years, the ARF has had the Border Collie Sheep Dog Trials and published the official Border Collie magazine. All this could not have been done if it hadn't have been for the ARF being set up to register all breeds of dogs as well as any breed of animals which includes horses, cattle, sheep, goats and Brahma Hogs.

In fact, the ARF system of registering Border Collies is very much like it is in Scotland. I know this to be true and correct because on these imported dogs from Scotland, the name will show up on a pedigree and where the number should be there will be "NR" which means that the dog was not registered but their pups are registered and the ancestors of these dogs in Scotland which have been approved on their merits, are being used. Their grand pups are being shipped to the USA to improve the Border Collies here or in hopes someone will get a dog good enough to win the Sheep Dog Trials in the USA.

The ARF is doing the same thing here as is being done in Scotland. This is a system to keep breeders honest and I want all ARF papers true and correct, even if we do have to approve a lot of dogs on their merits. And we have done away with all the red tape, and have a system people can understand. We have over 300 ARF Certified Breeders and all these breeders have an ARF Record Book and keep their own litter records and each and every pup has its own individual pedigree. This keeps people honest but it also keeps from getting the papers mixed up like they can get when entire litters are all registered together. It is much easier to fill out a pedigree correct when each litter has a page in the ARF Record Book, or at least each female has a page.

" PAPERS, BORDER COLLIES AND BARBADOS SHEEP "

The following is a most interesting letter from a gentleman by the name of Mr. Wallace O. Greene. In filling out the pedigrees on three littermates, he filled one out with "Heath Ranch" as the breeder, "D. W. Page" as breeder on the second and the third stated the breeder as "Dave Page". Naturally we were a little confused and the ARF would not register the Border Collies until Mr. Greene clarified the three names as being one and the same. So you can see how important it is for everyone to make out their pedigrees clearly and correctly to avoid having us make a mistake or becoming confused because we can't read the writing or because names are not clear.

Nevertheless, the remainder of Mr. Greene's letter is of particular interest and we thought our readers would enjoy it too.

Dear Mr. Stodghill,

Sorry I fouled you up on the registration of my dogs. "Heath Ranch", "D. W. Page" and "Dave Page" are one and the same people. However, I agree that it should have been consistent. At any rate, here are the corrected papers.

Now "Dan" was sold and gone before I received your first letter, so it is impossible to get a picture at this time. However, I may be able to later on. He was sold guaranteed to work, and the fellow told me that he was well satisfied with him, so I guess that is proof enough.

I am enclosing a picture of "Skip" (above) and an additional $3.00 registration fee for "Boots". Now all three of these dogs are full brothers.

It is going to be a while before I can get to Dave's place to get a picture of "Kandy" but someday before too long ( hope) I will get one for you.

Now these dogs all work anything! Ducks, chickens, tame rabbits, pigs, horses, sheep, Spanish goats, hair goats, cows, and anything that needs working--- including one another!

Regarding the sheep - what I have are two year old stags, in the wool, never before penned until they went to the yards. Wild as a deer but not as fast. I don't know where a fellow can get the kind you are speaking of. Of course there are a lot of Barbados sheep in this part of the country, and quite frequently we see some at the auction. They bring a fair price, but they are no real trouble for a good dog. Sometimes a dog will have to bay them, and then we rope them and drag them into the pen. That is usually because of extremely rough country and that's where these sheep like it. But I have never had any trouble with them with my dogs. Sometimes they will turn on a dog and when that happens, I have my dog grab them and after that, they drive right along.

Hope this will serve your purpose. With my kindest personal regards.

" RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN THE PLOTT HOUND AND THE CATAHOULA "

BY

Richard J. Bertrand
P. O. Box 2291
Lafayette, Louisiana 70501

I read with interest the article about the Plott Hound in the Spring-Summer 1971 issue. I am well aware of the Plott Hound as I had the occasion to see one. This dog was lodged at Dr. Elston's Kennels, a Lafayette vet, and belonged to a gentleman in the oil business. The dog was a beauty and weighed about 70 pounds. However, he would have been no match for my 107 pound "Caesar" who can duck and dodge and really throw his weight around.

I am also well acquainted with the facts quoted by Mr. LeBon about the Plott Hound. This research came from "The Dog Encyclopedia" by Henry P. Davis, first printing in 1931.

Remember this -- the Plott Hound is only a hound used to trail, bay and corner bear and hogs, mostly bear. Have you ever heard of a Plott Hound driving cattle? Can the Plott Hound drive cattle? The simple answer is NO. The Catahoula is not simply a hound. He can do a hound's work trailing wild hogs (bear too if so trained) but he can outdo a hound once the hog or bear is cornered, in his ability to duck and dodge with greater strength. In addition, the Catahoula can tend and drive cattle! This is not a characteristic of the Hound.

Catahoula Leopard Cowdogs owned by Stodghill's Ranch, Quinlan, Texas. These dogs show true Catahoula type and the best color.

No, the Catahoula is a hound PLUS!

I have no doubt that back in Europe the Plott Hound and the Catahoula have some common ancestor. Remember, those countries are small - Germany, Spain, and France. That the hunting of wild bear was a great sport. The Germans were great breeders of dogs and I have no doubt that they had some hand in creating the ancestor of the Catahoula and that the strain found its way and favor to Spain.

I feel that the Catahoula, in addition to having some long ago Hound strain, also contain greatly the blood of some long ago Mastiff. This would explain the many abilities.

In Mr. Davis' book no mention is made of the Catahoula, but remember that in 1931, the Catahoula had not strayed very far from its North Louisiana home.

My conclusions are and remain as follows:

- 1.) The Catahoula has traits and abilities of the Hound.
- 2.) The Catahoula then possesses abilities unknown to the Hound - he can drive cattle.
- 3.) The Catahoula has common ancestors with the great Mastiffs of Europe including Germany.
- 4.) He came to America from Spain long before the Plott Hound.
- 5.) He remained in a small section of Louisiana for many years.

I once read an article that Theodore Roosevelt, who was known to be a great hunter, used the Airedale Terrier to hunt bear. These dogs had such great courage that many were lost because they plunged right into the bear and were killed. Courage alone belongs to a fool, but courage tempered with wisdom belongs to a wise man. I have seen Catahoula dogs dodge and jump back out of dangers way until one would think they were retreating. But they kept this up until the hog became dizzy. Catahoulas never quit and are persistent to a fault; they possess a stubbornness that would cause a saint to swear!

" THE WORKING CATAHOULA "

By
Tom D. Stodghill

My 100% French Catahoula had all four of the Catahoula Leopard Dog colors - black-tan with just a touch of white between the front legs, and a little blue hair but she had a littermate that was about 50% blue and the most convincing thing of all was that my 100% French Catahoula Leopard worked true Catahoula Leopard style and had the style of working sows and pigs that is so much in demand by people with hogs on the range that have to use dogs to pen the sows and pigs. If a pig tried to get away, the French Catahoula had that natural style of work to put a pig back with its mother. A dog that can work pigs, sows, cows and baby calves are the most valuable of all Catahoula Leopard Dogs and if you had a 100% French Catahoula Leopard, you wouldn't need a Border Collie for pigs and baby calves or need a bulldog for old rough bulls and wild boars, because the French Catahoula knows how to get rough but is intelligent enough to take it easy on the pigs and baby calves the same as the most advanced Border Collies do.

" BREEDING FOR COLOR AND QUALITY IN THE AUSTRALIAN SHEPHERD "

To preserve the fine qualities of the Australian Shepherd, ARF breeders have set up a Clock-Wise Breeding Program using one great Hub Sire. But even with the very best Hub Sire possessing all the good qualities of the Aussie, you still have to use good judgement in order to hold all these good qualities and still keep a balance of color. On these fancy dogs it is a constant war of the genes and it takes good judgement for color and type are easier to hold than the working quality.

If the Hub Sire has good working quality with the blue merle not too dark and not too light, he is a good choice for a Hub Sire. The next step is to breed him to a female that has the light blue merle. Also breed him to a female that has the heavy dark blue merle. Now when you breed the pups from these two matings together - pups sired by the same Hub Sire out of females that are unrelated to each other - you hold 50% of the Hub Sire and 25% of each female. You also mate light pups to the dark. Then get two more females that are unrelated to each other and use the same good judgement in mating them to the same Hub Sire and mate their pups together.

You now have two Clock-Wise bred litters out of four unrelated females. If you used good judgement in selecting your foundation breeding stock, when you get these four females all blended together, you should get pups almost just alike. As long as the Hub Sire lives you can breed new females to him and blend them into your Clock-Wise bred family. And if your Hub Sire is a

With her Australian Shepherd. Please notice how he stands up on his toes, also notice high flank which is so important for speed and working long hours, this is the type to breed for.

Natural Bob out of a good line, you should get over 90% Natural Bob pups.

You should also mate blue eyes to brown eyes and you will never have any trouble with eyes. Blue eyed dogs give less trouble than glass eyed dogs. In fact, a few dark blue eyed dogs can be bred to double glass eyed dogs and you will get 100% good pups and even get a few with brown eyes. There are not many like this but there are a few and when you find one tie onto that line and get that heavy blue eye in your Hub Sire to help everyone who gets your pups.

The Australian Shepherd is one of the hardest breeds of dogs there is to judge. Color alone is not enough. Even the blue merle color and Natural Bob is not enough because you can breed a 4-tone Natural Bob Catahoula to a Border Collie and get a 4-tone blue merle with a Natural Bob tail and long hair and still not have any Australian Shepherd blood! This breed can be judged by their type, style of work and Natural Bob tail. The Aussie has a style of heeling all its own and are unusually good with horses, heel and not get kicked. They are also willing workers.

Recently I bought two Australian Shepherd pups and they went to work on their own at about four months of age. One is a blue merle and the other is black and white. They are full brothers out of the same litter.

The pups just started throwing cattle together on their own in my pasture. We have owned lots of dogs but these have more style about their work than any that we have ever had.

I will probably register them a little later after I find out more about their parents.

These pups don't understand any commands yet, but we have had two and a half year old dogs that weren't as good.

The mother of these pups is a blue merle and never has had the opportunity to work much until she was three years old.

I bought an Australian Cattle Dog from Bill and Lucy Guynes of Eldon, Missouri. He will be 13 months old the 18th of this month (July 1962) and his name is "Smokey".

If anyone ever wonders about Australian Cattle Dogs, they should not even worry at all about them because this breed is one of the hardest working dogs there is and Australian Cattle Dogs are not quitters!

I use mine on hogs and cattle and he's not rough but firm. He does not tear them to make them bleed like some dogs. He is easy to manage and when he works too fast, I just call him off and he waits until I say "Git 'em!"

I really like to use him to move sows and baby pigs. I walk alongside of a sow with a paper feed sack and slap her on the side of her head to guide her and "Smokey" brings up the rear. He does this on his own and makes it so easy.

Whenever the cattle or pigs get out, "Smokey" gets them back in and he stays with the job until he gets all of them back. He always walks between me and the bull or sassy sows, and to me this is worth a lot!

He goes wherever I go and it seems as though he understands what I am doing and fits himself in and helps.

So if anybody is in doubt about getting an Australian Cattle Dog, he should get one and see!

These twelve week old Brahma pigs came directly from the Animal Research Foundation. They are owned by Mr. R. L. Ramsey of Odessa, Texas.

" A FEW WORDS ON THE BRAHMA HOG "

By
Tom D. Stodghill

Brahma Hogs are absolutely the world's most vigorous hogs and they are also more resistant to disease than any other type of hog.

Their ears stand up straight and the pigs are as striped as a Zebra when they are born, but the stripes fade away when the pigs shed their pig hair.

These Brahma typed hogs are a combination of about nine breeds but the extra vigor and Brahma type come from the European Wild Hog. Resistance to disease also comes from the European Wild Hog.

These are not only the world's best meat hogs with the famous flavor of the Tamsworth, but they will grow as fast as any breed of hogs. These Brahma typed hogs are show hogs and will steal any show!

You still get the commercial and the exhibition pigs in the same litter, all have the same type but still you get a few solid colored pigs which are mostly red, but sometimes you get a black pig as the English Large Black was bred into these Brahma typed hogs.

Went heavy on Duroc for a while but still too much fat but there seemed to be a sex-linkage between the Tamsworth and the Brahma typed hogs and now the Brahma typed hog carries more Tamsworth blood than any other breed, but they still carry a controlling gene from the European Wild Hog.

Only the Tamsworth has the extra good flavor of the bacon, hams and pork loins as the Brahma typed hog but the Brahma is more vigorous, more disease resistant and grow out from as much as two weeks or a month depending on management and the type of feed.

The Brahma is a rugged hog that does good on pasture but will hold their own with any breed in pig parlors.

Where large herds of hogs are fed together and many breeds are fed together, is where the Brahma typed hog sure shows up what the extra vigor is really worth. They will be the first ones ready for market!

The Brahma typed color is with the stripes running the long way of the body. But even if you mate sows and boars together with perfect color, you will still get a few of the commercial typed pigs with solid color, but most of the hogs come true to color. You still get 100% of the Brahma vigor; even the commercial typed solid colored Brahma pigs will domino, that is, a number of the pigs will become the exhibition pigs with the fancy stripes that attract so much attention and steal any show.

I had two sows that had 27 pigs last September 15th but about 11 pigs is about the average sized litter, and you never get less than nine to a litter. 12 pigs to a litter is more unusual.

Watch these Brahma typed hogs become the leading breed in the USA because they are disease resistant and have extra vigor with that wonderful flavor of hams and bacon. Even the ribs have a better flavor!

Tom D. Stodghill and Mrs. Skip Shaffer of T & S Taxidermy, Rt. 4, Terrell, Texas, with mounted Brahma hog.

"Panda", a silver black. The tub will give you an idea how tall the African Pygmy Goat is.

" INTRODUCING THE AFRICAN PYGMY GOAT "

Ruth Enriquez from 11092 Tuxford Street in Sun Valley, California, sent the Animal Research Foundation several photographs of her African Pygmy Goats and we thought our readers might be interested in seeing them.

As their name implies, these goats are from Guinea, Africa, and are about one third smaller than the dairy goat. They have small ears and have stocky bodies and are never like a small dairy goat at all.

Ruth Enriquez tells us that her females are 18 to 20 inches high and her males are about 23 inches high.

This is "Maggie", a one day old African Pygmy Goat. She stands 8½" high and weighs a mere 2 pounds 10 ounces.

Their milk is rich like a nubian dairy goat - a very fine flavor with no strong aftertaste, and they give about two quarts of milk a day.

"I have dairy goats that are pets," says Mrs. Enriquez, "but they cannot compare with the African Pygmies.

They are said to be very easy to train, just like a dog, and Mrs. Enriquez has one that goes in the car everywhere.

In regard to color, they are black, silver black and silver blue. The blue shades are in demand.

"Frosty" and 8 day old "Tillie".

----- THE ARF REGISTERED 24 OF THE "AFRICANPYGMY GOATS"

The ARF is set up to Register all Breeds of FARM ANIMALS. It now cost so much to carry on Registering Office the ARF is set up to carry on the Registry of any breed that is forced to go out of business.

THE ARF HELPS EVERY ONE THAT ASK FOR HELP. Lot of people have Registered animals but do not know how to fill out Pedigrees to get their young animals Registered, the ARF helps these people fill out the Pedigree and get their animals Registered in the office where they are originally Registered in. We are working on a system to make it possible to have ARF Registration office in many of the large cities to help people get their dogs and all other farm Animals Registered.

. On New Breeds and Foreign Breeds where there isnt any Registry to Reg. these Breeds the ARF Registers these Breeds, if there is a Registry and papers are in order the ARF Mails the Papers to the Correct office.

ARF EXIBITION
Sunday August 27th .1972

North Hall of Market Hall, Dallas, Texas. Corner NWH. #35E-Industrial Blvd.
Hours 7:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m.

The Animal Research Foundation has Leased a Booth at the Dallas Charity Dog Show, which is one of the largest Dog Shows in Dallas. This is AKC Show but the ARF has a space about 20 feet by 30 ft. where we can have our ARF Registered dogs on exhibition. I am hoping there will be a lot of Fancy Colored Catahoula Leopard, Australian Shepherd, Australian Cattle dogs, English Shepherd and any and all ARF Registered dogs will be there.

This is a all breed Show and we dont know yet whether we will get to Judge our ARF Registered dogs or not, but we will have ARF Judge there and if we have enough dogs more than likely we will have the worlds first ARF Working Dog Show.

At the state Fair of Texas, each breed of Cattle, Sheep, Horses and swine have their own breed Registry's but they are all showed at the State Fair of Texas and also showed at all the County Fairs. I cant see why Dog Shows cant be run the same way.

Each and every ARF Dog on Exhibition will have to be on Leash and have a handler and only one dog to each Handler.

The ARF is also showing a Big Mounted Brahma Boar Hog, which has tusk about 4 inches long that should attract a lot of attention, this is one of the Old Foundation Hub Brahma Boars, we still have two litter mates to the Mounted Boar that we are still using to breed sows to and they are going strong at 8 years of age. All the ARF Registered Brahma Hogs date back to these three great Boars.

ARF Registration Service

The Animal Research Foundation is set up to Register all breed of Farm Animals. Also to help every one sell their ARF Registered Animals.

Due to the fact that so many people over the years have kept coming to the ARF Registration office asking for help and they have Animals that are Registered in other Registry's. The ARF has made a lot of friends by helping these people get their animals Registered, what I mean is the ARF show these people how to get their animals transferred to their names and many of these Animals are not ARF Registered but the ARF fill out the Pedigree and get the animals Registered in the Parent club. This holds true in dogs as well as other animals.

Where people have lost their Registration papers and the Registry does not have a system to reinstate a animal when the papers has been lost the ARF will Register these Animals on their Merits but when the ARF Registers a Animal on its Merit it has to be above average and it is a very positive fact the Animal is pure bred and subject to Registration and on all animals including dogs that havent ever been Registered before or the ARF is Registering on their Merits, we have a picture to put with the Pedigree to show the Animal is pure bred after the Animal is ARF Approved do not have to have a picture to Register the off spring.

Catahoula Leopard Stockdogs were never Registered until the ARF Registered them and they have proved to be one of the most popular breeds of Stockdogs, as they stop wild vovs from running, can trail and find every cow and every wild hog the ARF Registered Catahoulas are very much in demand and at attractive prices, started dogs bring $150. Trained dogs $300. up. and people who buy these trained dogs buy them because they have cattle or hogs they cant pen and a lot of times cant even find.

The ARF Registered Bra-Char Cattle are in the making, the Brahma Hogs a proven fact and the ARF Registered Black-tan English Shepherd is the leading breed for cowdogs then Catahoula Leopard, Australian Cattle dogs Border Collies are gaining every day and Working type Australian Shepherd and gaining all Foreign breeds are gaining and Pick-A-Poo are .

Does your 16 month old Quarter Horse look like this? This colt is sixteen months old and is exercised daily by a trained Dingo. It was discovered that the horses, when being developed at the stables, would receive more exercise quicker if they were exercised by the dog in the lot. The Dingo is also used for penning horses in large pastures.
